

HEDR IDEA LEADERSHIP CONFERENCE

Small Town, Big Ideas

Intersectional Paths to Equity in Urban and Rural Communities

SPONSORSHIP PACKAGE

ABOUT THE CONFERENCE

The 11th HEDR IDEA Leadership Conference brings together leaders, practitioners, community advocates, researchers, and creatives to explore equity through the lens of place. This two-day event examines how identities, experiences, and systemic barriers shift across rural, suburban, and urban communities, and how intersectionality can guide meaningful, community-centred solutions.

Hosted by the Halton Equity, Diversity & Inclusion Roundtable and Town of Halton Hills, this conference will feature TED-style talks, film screenings, experiential workshops, lectures, forums, and arts-based learning. Presenters will offer insight into how communities of all sizes can foster belonging and advance justice.

ABOUT HALTON EQUITY & DIVERSITY ROUNDTABLE

The Halton Equity Diversity Roundtable is a collaborative network dedicated to advancing equity, diversity, and inclusion across the Halton region. We bring together individuals, organizations, and businesses who share a common vision: building a community where everyone feels they belong.

Our mission is to strengthen the capacity of people and organizations to create equitable and inclusive spaces through learning, connection, and shared action. Together, we work to foster a community where individuals of all identities—across race, ethnicity, gender, sexual orientation, age, ability, and socioeconomic background—are valued and empowered.

Through collaboration and collective impact, HEDR strives to break down barriers, challenge systemic inequities, and nurture a culture of respect, understanding, and belonging throughout Halton.
